NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

MERALCO Shares of the Land Bank of the Philippines

The public is once again put on notice that LANDBANK remains the owner of the 42,002,750 shares of stock in MERALCO which were transferred to Josefina S. Lubrica on November 28, 2008 on the basis of the Order of the former DAR Regional Adjudicator Conchita C. Minas dated October 30, 2008 and the Demand to Comply dated November 3, 2008 issued by the Sheriffs of Adjudicator Minas.

The new DAR Regional Adjudicator Marivic C. Casabar has already recalled and withdrawn the Order of Adjudicator Minas and declared it and all actions taken pursuant thereto as illegal, and therefore null and void, pursuant to her Order issued on December 15, 2008. Adjudicator Casabar has also directed MERALCO to cancel the stock certificates issued to Josefina S. Lubrica and restore the ownership of LANDBANK over the 42,002,750 shares of stock in an Order issued on December 17, 2008.

The public is therefore once more warned that any sale, transfer, assignment or conveyance of LANDBANK's shares of stock in MERALCO, whether in the name of LANDBANK, Josefina S. Lubrica or any of her transferee or assignee, is null and void.

Peta: In Year of Ox, get meat off plates

By Tina S. Santos

AN INK-SOAKED TISSUE WOULD BE ready to dry in the Queen of the Ox, no matter what group members called on members to leave meat and dairy products off their plates.

"Come eat, intelligent, sensitive animals with unique personalities, for the new and shiny! But don't leave them in rolling waves from walking on hot and cold machines," according to the slogan for the 10th Anniversary of Animal Rights (Peta).

"They are routinely treated, abandoned and sacrificed without anesthesia. From our dairy farms we kept constantly pregnant, lame, blind, barren, repeatedly injured young cows, and we breed to produce 10 more more milk than they naturally would before being slaughtered and ground up for hamburger," they said.

In addition, "slaughterhouse workers routinely inject or administer, beating, scolding, starving and otherwise brutalizing live animals in order to keep production lines moving."

"As the Year of the ox approaches, what better way to celebrate these gentle, sensitive animals than by making a resolution to leave them off of our plates?" said Tina Santos (Peta's Asia Editor).

"Throughout history, healthy, happy animals in food and dairy products make it easy to make a year for everyone to enjoy," they said.

Peta also shared these facts about cows:

- According to the Chinese zodiac, people born in the Year of the Ox possess the most qualities of sensibility, loyalty, strength, initiative, as well as ability to know objectives in business and family.
- Oxen care. Each cow can weigh 1,500 pounds or more. Some 130 million of the best, and most intelligent animals are very important to them. When separated from their families, friends, or human companions, they grieve, often making noise, over their loss.

• Cows have their calves. Mother cows have been known to believe for their babies and react to calls to create with calves that have been sold to meat farms.

• Cows have "Bark" behavior. Sometimes have found that cows not only figure out problems, but they also enjoy the constant challenge and get excited when they find solutions.

• Cows are intelligent. Research has shown that cows (cattle) understand cause and effect relationships—a sign of advanced cognitive abilities. Much like humans, cows have inner lives and emotions, and have the capacity to worry about the future.

Pacquiao's second round of the year, on June 26, captured him in the light heavyweight division, in a match that was a master class in boxing.

Despite the gallant result of the defending champion, David Diaz, Pacquiao eventually broke his opponent apart with his combination of raw power and cool calculation. The win at the MGM Grand was a well-deserved triumph for the boxer, who has won 10 world titles.

The final fight of the year, on Dec. 12, found Pacquiao in a tough fight with the light heavyweight division, in a match that was a master class in boxing.

A fighting chance for Pinoy boxers

When business leader and sports patron Manny V. Pangilinan recently visited a local boxing competition in Pampanga, he was stunned to know that the prize the aspiring pugilists – some of them coming from as far as the Ilocos Region – were fighting for was a measly P400. It is the same lack of material support that drove the PLDT and SMART Philippines chairman to immerse himself in sports as early as 1999 when he took over management of the then Mobiline team, now known as Talk N' Text, playing in the Philippine Basketball Association (PBA). But while basketball enjoyed a wide support from the private sector, the rest of the Philippine sporting world did not. One such sport is boxing, which is deemed the most likely to bring the first Olympic gold to the country.

PANGILINAN KNOWS THAT WITHOUT THE LIVING hand from business and other external sources, the dream of landing the elusive Olympic gold will remain just a dream. Last year, after some sleeplessness, Pangilinan accepted the chairmanship of the Amateur Boxing Association of the Philippines (ABAP), to be the credit that Philippine boxing is now doing a brighter future not only in capturing the much desired Olympic gold but also in boxing uppin' boxing from one becoming disciplined, dedicated and self-motivated individuals. This is the same vision he has for Filipino athletes – to become truly self-reliant.

His mission, which has remained the same since he first got involved in basketball, is to professionalize Philippine sports. Beyond the banners, trophies and the marketing world, his initial focus was to have to improve athletes – particularly big business – to get involved and share in the overall spirit of discipline and fairness.

"In many respects, sports is a strong metaphor for life. Sports is about excellence, about working hard, about setting goals, about winning – but winning the right way," he was once quoted.

With that war in mind, it's no wonder that Pangilinan – a man with a burning passion for sports – brought to life a beautiful dream to put the Philippines on the international sporting map.

Taking the lead

Last year, SMART embarked on a program to identify, train and reward Filipino athletes. The challenge was to move the brand from being a mere sponsor of sporting events to a genuine advocate – a real desire behind the Filipino love for sports.

At the helm of the effort is Michael Patrick "Pat" Gueco who is the head of SMART Sports Marketing and Special Projects. He was also recently installed as the president of the Amateur Boxing Association of the Philippines (ABAP).

Gueco notes that SMART has realized that many budding sports heroes are choosing to become professionals even before they could make a name for themselves and for the country. The reason financial security.

SMART has decided to put equal emphasis on the boxer's lifestyle and needs. Also, training, discipline and focus. By addressing his personal needs, the program encourages the athletes to strive to win honor for his body and eventually for the country. It is his hope that SMART hopes would be adopted throughout Philippine sports.

Going for gold

By using its extraordinary reach and imagination, SMART makes it possible to feel where from the grassroots, up there personal and ultimately create world class sports warriors with a fighting chance of winning gold at the 2012 London Olympics that has eluded our athletes for so long.

SMART's Gueco-Magay, who spearheads marketing and is a former and amateur boxer himself, says the program will definitely pay even outside the boxing ring. However, it will take time but not time to shape the country's sports heroes.

"What Philippine sports needs now is the connection to reach out and the passion to excel and make things happen, and this goes for everyone whether athletes, fans, leader or patron," Gueco says.

Bringing it on

A timely development, the 1st SMART National Amateur Boxing Championships was created by SMART as the premier event for the sports community. With an estimated 500 participants, it is probably the biggest and most important boxing event the country has ever seen.

"It is the need for a nationwide boxing tournament designed to establish a tangible venue for amateur and elite level boxing to encourage the different boxing organizations under ABAP's support," says ABAP president Pat Gueco, who is also a top executive of PLDT.

"The objective here is to make the identification and recruitment of promising Filipino boxers to be trained and molded into highly competitive athletes who will bring honor to the country in international competition," he adds.

The new ABAP boxing center to enhance the training set-up to start with a regional coach for athletes who will be trained in the national pool and which will eventually in a grand national championship, the next edition of which will probably be held in early 2013.

Bright tomorrow

With Pangilinan's business instinct, honed through years of professional excellence and hard work, and his commitment to lead more than a boxing band, the Filipino athlete can look forward to growing more respect and recognition from the international sporting community.

The recognition of ABAP's chairmanship is a vote of confidence for the Filipino boxer and a great opportunity that the Philippines will eventually lead the much-coveted Olympic gold.

The career involvement of Pangilinan and SMART is boxing, basketball, badminton and lawn tennis is just the beginning. With his passion simply overflowing and more passion like him emerging, there's no doubt the best is yet to come in Philippine sports.

It is his humble beginnings that make him to where to the independent country boxing the Filipino athletes. It is his humble beginnings that make him to where to the independent country boxing the Filipino athletes. ABAP calls congress to draft blueprint

AT LEAST AN AMATEUR boxer, from all over the Philippines are competing for honor and a chance to represent their country in the upcoming 2012 London Olympic Games. The event is the opening of the 2012 SMART National Amateur Boxing Championships in Iloilo City.

Thanks to SMART Philippines, the country's leading cellular phone provider, the boxing pugilists now have a venue to show their skills and work up representing the Philippines in international competitions – and maybe even pursue a professional path towards fame, glory and wealth.

"This is SMART's way of helping our country produce the best professional athletes and enhance the Philippine chance of winning an Olympic gold one day soon," said Patrick Gueco, head of SMART Sports Marketing and Special Projects, who is also chairman of the Amateur Boxing Association of the Philippines (ABAP).

To ensure the boxing pugilists receive the best training, SMART has decided to grant the opening ceremonies held last Friday at the MHRAC in Iloilo City. It was Pangilinan's first trip to Iloilo after his vacation in the United States. He was in Iloilo to see the boxing pugilists and to see the boxing pugilists.

The week-long 2012 SMART National Amateur Boxing Championships which opened last January 16 is being held in coordination with ABAP. The event is the opening of the 2012 SMART National Amateur Boxing Championships which opened last January 16 is being held in coordination with ABAP.

Another highlight of the event is the signing of the Boxing Congress as open on January 17 at the Iloilo Hotel. The event is the opening of the 2012 SMART National Amateur Boxing Championships which opened last January 16 is being held in coordination with ABAP.

"Above all, let us shrink from no challenge, moral or physical, within or outside this nation, for it is only by intense and dedicated endeavour, that we can ultimately win the goal of true national greatness."

BAGUIO CITY—SPURRED BY THE ONGOING global recession, there's only one thing business owners need to know at the onset of the year: Jade.

And another thing: Tourism.

Alvin Shukys, proprietor of Shamir Philippines in Forta Vaga mall in Baguio City, says jade and tourmaline are the two most important stones that one can have to weather the recession.

"For the house of stress, you need to hang jade charms. For your body you need to wear tourmaline," Shukys says.

Jade is known the world over as an irreplaceable stone, but Shukys says that long shaggy or cartilage of the right auspicious Chinese symbols (peacock, golden fish, victory banner, vase, ruyi, eternal love, white lotus) and the sheer of thousand are preferred.

"Hang them on the left side of your house or office because that is the part that is most sacred," she says.

She says that choosing the lucky stones for the year was decided upon by Shamir gemstones.

"These two stones were chosen to be the light of the dark forecast brought by the financial recession. Jade and tourmaline possess strong energy to help us tackle the crisis," she says.

Gapuz: A name nurses have come to swear by

By Michelle V. Rana

THE IDEAL TIME TO REEVALUATE the new Nursing Management Education Law from the biggest threat to even for the capital for Gapuz Center Co., one of the country's leading institutions that assist nursing graduates in getting to nursing professional licenses.

That year, Gapuz Center Co. was a success in building the momentum to nursing professionals who took the licensure exams, leading to reputation.

Legacy
While that experience affected the image of the nation's nursing education by the Gapuz family, it's clear and local evidence was abundant about nursing the country's name, growing prospects for the education of a new wave.

"I am a Gapuz and I am proud of that name," says Rana. "The Gapuzs, who built from Dapitan City in Negros Occidental, changing the company name could have meant a change of path."

Now, more than five years since the would-be, Rana tells the business is at an inflection point that the family business is at its best stage.

Rana says that Gapuz Center has been born through a step-by-step of planning, and it now looks to head up high as a change to have the biggest name in the business of nursing education.

The year that the company has kept the confidence of its clients throughout the country. The company received the award with pride, Rana says, knowing with pride.

"This is a challenge, as just as our path, that there was no changing that happened in our architecture," Rana says.

The company then shifted to support in the marketing effort on among the students, competitors, and the authorities, he explains.

Rana says that he thinks with belief what he calls "black propaganda" against Gapuz Center. But he stresses that even that half of marketing could have been to deliver the message to the public.

That fact is what has been proven, says Rana, as the company's success in getting the nursing education to the public.

Wasteful, he adds, that year, Gapuz Center is the most successful nursing center in the

in the country.

Gapuz Center has been recognized as one of the country's "Top 100" in 2005, he says.

He adds that the success of the Gapuz Center is due to the success of the company.

For instance, he says, Gapuz Center has developed software and computer-based games that will help improve the memory of people taking exams at their schools.

He adds that the success of the Gapuz Center is due to the success of the company.

Rana is a nursing board top official in 2005, he himself, one of the members of Gapuz Center, he says, the center's success in nursing education, the way he received academic excellence in education.

Academic supplement

He has a bachelor's degree in nursing from the University of Santo Tomas, where he graduated with honors in 1993. He also has a master's degree in nursing and a graduate degree in nursing from the same university in 1995.

Rana also has a published book, entitled "Nursing in a Flash," which provides students with a supplement to nursing education also in nursing for a day in nursing.

Rana also was included in the 10th edition of "Who's Who in the World," the nursing supplement.

He received the Young Market Award in 2006 for his leadership in 2006 from the Philippine Business Award.

Rana has conducted research in nursing in the Philippines, including in the Philippines, China and Taiwan—in a research to improve nursing education in the Philippines.

Rana is a member of the Philippine Nursing Association, the Philippine Nurses Association, and the Philippine Nurses Association.

graduates abroad.

Rana is proud to say that his parents have a huge influence on his academic achievement and success in nursing the family business.

"My parents' dedication to education, and they were very motivated," says Rana, who holds a doctorate degree in management.

By choice that, as a father, he would not let his children in nursing a better shop, a better, a commitment that is nursing a company.

He has three siblings, two of whom are nurses, one is a nurse and another a doctor, Rana says.

But of the five Gapuz children, Rana is the one who got their parents' blessing for nursing a business. While support from the family, Rana says, that in the first five years of operation, the Gapuz Center suffered from lack of students, that only was the company name, and the company name, and the company name, and the company name.

Despite the rough start, Rana says, he and his family continued the business.

He says his belief in the principle "work, learn, grow, wait for your time, and when it comes, let it fly."

Waiting for his time definitely served Gapuz Center well. After the start, that year, Rana says, the success of the company by leaps and bounds, thanks to the ability to attract and the hard work he and family had provided in building up the company name.

Gapuz Center now has branches in Metro Manila and the provinces. Now, Rana says, it will set up branches abroad.

The company is working on expanding its operations in South America and Asia, he adds.

One thing that Rana says is getting people around, and knowing that students in nursing education is a part of that person's success.

He says it pleased him to have parents of nurses who took their children to Gapuz and who have made it big abroad.

"Bringing goods home, like this is a joy that money can't buy," Rana says.

Looking back at the company's history, Rana concludes that hard work begins success, and nursing good can be put down.

"Life is so rich, it grows back what you sow," Rana says.

and collections (this is the way where in the Philippines) specializing in Philippine and Chinese art and crafts, looking for luck.

"Most are looking for traditional good luck charms like Chinese yellow or orange quartz and crystals," Rana says.

She says jade is known to attract good luck and friendship and is more associated with the heart chakra of the body's energy centers.

Aside from the ring jade, which attracts Piti, is Piti, for a plain stone, Rana says, jade is also jade.

The most expensive is the Chinese jade, which is sold for P100 a kilo.

Rana says that a kilo of various colors and sizes usually from Sri Lanka, Brazil, Africa, United States, Australia, Afghanistan and India.

A Chinese stone, however, is traditionally used to protect the owner of wealth, Rana says. It also attracts the body's energy.

Rana says that jade is also used to attract good luck and friendship and is more associated with the heart chakra of the body's energy centers.

SM expands GreenBag concept

SM SUPERMALLS YESTERDAY UNVEILED the new SM Supermalls GreenBag as part of its efforts to become a socially-responsible company.

Launched under the company's Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) campaign called SM Green, the SM Supermalls GreenBag enables shoppers to participate in the global cause to reduce the use of nonbiodegradable plastic shopping bags.

Made from polypropylene material, the SM Supermalls GreenBag is recyclable and reusable.

The GreenBag's size is equivalent to two regular shopping bags and can last for two years.

Last year, SM Supermalls and Unilever partnered to launch the SM Greening in all SM supermarkets and hypermarkets.

This year's introduction of the SM Supermalls GreenBag entails a green number of changes.

This time, the Greening will be available to small grocers in four different exclusive designs by world-renowned artist Manuel Mendive—taking shopping into a higher level with social responsibility and style rolled into one.

"I am very happy, honored and proud to be partnered with SM Supermalls to exclusively design the new SM Supermalls Greening. The initiative is parallel to my personal advocacy for the environment," says Mendive.

SM shoppers may get a Redwood-colored SM Supermalls Greening for only P25 with every P300 single or accumulated savings purchase and/or any proof of purchase at any SM store.

CEO retires to smell the coffee

Former exec gives entrepreneurship a try

By Chappie Medina
Dagupan City

NOT WANTING to just reek in the stables after retiring from the corporate world, Antonio "Tony" Sevilla decided to open a coffee boutique. "I wanted to be able to showcase Philippine products, and I saw our coffee was to be the best product," he says.

What he had in mind was not in the mind of his brother or CEO or figure.

"In my travels, I noticed that most countries carried their own coffee trademarks to the Caribbean, Mexico, Puerto Rico, Italy were the Italian State but did not really grow its own coffee. I would see packed coffee bearing the country's name," he says.

Together with his brother Eddie, Tony spent hours researching on locally grown coffee. From Trinidad, he learned coffee grows in the Mt. Province, Bulacan, Ilocos, and Baguio, and even their respective territories.

"To you know that the typical Filipino is involved in coffee in Tagalog," he says.

The business of coffee business Tony so much that he joined an association of small independent farmers in the United States, and provided their connection to know everything to do about the industry.

In Japan, he studied the day method of preparing a coffee drink. He even went to Korea, the home of KCC, to learn its specialty.

"I also heard about charcoal roasting," he says.

SEVILLA roasts coffee the best of Philippine coffee bag in Japan," he says.

At home, he started roasting beans. He would mix different coffee beans to come up with blends, taking into account such factors as roasting temperature—roast, aroma, and flavor. Tony even learned how to roast coffee using slow, over low heat (charcoal).

In 2004, a year after the everything that Tony and Eddie had been working on.

Origins & Co. was opening. Initially, a village-type mall in Pang City was committed to promoting anything Filipino-made. The management liked Tony's concept of selling different blends of coffee from locally grown in the Philippines, and offered him a stall.

Tony and Eddie worked quickly on a packaging for the coffee blends, and came up with different designs that distinctly represented the region where the beans came from. They bought improved foil for the packs, and even purchased a vacuum packing machine.

True to their objective of promoting Philippine-grown coffee, the founders called the company Philipino Mountain Coffee Collectors Inc.

The original intention was simply to sell the blend coffee in packs. To attract people to buy, they also lowered coffee at a low price of P100.

"In Japan," according to Tony, "the business passed on small cups for local or visitor people to buy the blend coffee in packs. That would not have worked in the Philippines."

Eventually they raised the price to P150 after spending the money in royalties. This time, customers were making it a habit to have their coffee from the comfortable and spacious stall located in the building.

Cookies, pastries, and even hot and other pastries followed, slightly reshaping the business's original form, but still not quite seen as becoming a coffee shop.

Philippine Mountain Coffee's blends were just as difficult for the Tondo, Manila, to taste, and there was a blend for every coffee lover: two types of mild blends, one medium and one strong.

For those who preferred special coffee, Tony offered the drip method and the what he used in Japan.

They wanted to keep the boutique concept as the forefront of his business branding, and there are many reasons that he did so because why he cannot compete with the many coffee shops that have mushroomed in Metro Manila and other cities in the country, so why he will not be able to bring his blends to competitors.

First, he says, the quality and supply of locally harvested coffee beans will not support a quantum jump in demand. Local coffee beans need to be cleaned and re-classified according to how sellers they are mixed. Supply is also very dependent on the weather, and a severe one that causes the upland plantation where coffee is traditionally grown will immediately affect production.

Secondly, it takes at least three times longer to roast the beans according to Tony's technique. And Tony at this point is quite not willing to compromise the quality of his beans by adopting his roasting technology.

Lastly, Tony says, "I have the country's most expensive coffee sold by price."

award "The 11th Hour," a well-received 2007 documentary on the world's environment. DiCaprio's commitment to sustainability and clean living is now being the cornerstone of his partnership with TAC House.

"TAC House and I will make donations to some of the best sustainable and effective environmental organizations around," says DiCaprio.

"DiCaprio is the man that can get us to the point where the planet will be better. He wants to change the planet and improve the plight of children in need. He is not just for the skills and money, it's a heart, a sense of mission," says Jean-Christophe Babin, CEO and president.

Real first is TAC House's former ambassador for five years.

He was an exceptional ambassador and remains a highly respected friend of the brand.

"However, this year, TAC House is stepping in to support 'What are you made of?' campaign, which has been running since 2002. We felt that our heart in the advertising campaign really would create even greater impact, hence this," Babin says.

With the state of the economy it is crucial for a luxury brand like TAC House to be able to leverage its ambassadors in the city, a primary market for any luxury brand. This mission did not come without challenges, so TAC House needed a new global ambassador to represent the brand worldwide.

"DiCaprio's agreement to include TAC House in his current role key to our decision and quite unusual for an actor of his caliber and stature," Babin says.

The strategy fits with TAC House's product collections, which

JANUARY IS TIME FOR A FRESH start, especially this one when we have two New Years in it. Start by how we survived the extended holiday season, and already 2009 is full on way. The social calendar led off with a

STARTING ON

IN 1996, THE LUXURY LEATHER GOODS and accessory designer Françoise Martine launched a completely new and original concept, creating a paper handbag with leather handles. Customers were quickly captivated by this playful idea.

The idea was for our brand new line, and its first boutique opened in 2001.

A wide range of combinations are possible, thanks to the variety of available shapes and materials. Handbags are offered in crocodile, snakeskin, cow leather, chevron, crocodile and even PVC. The handbags are made of paper but are also available in fabric or in leather. Several of these handbags models are available.

For Martine, it is essential to stay in sync with the times without being too influenced by trends. She wants to create a brand that is timeless, in order to offer handbags that her customers can personalize and make their own. She and her team are aware of this, regularly creating new models between collections.

The year 2008 was a successful one for the personalized nature of these handbags, which are handcrafted in France, mostly in a studio in the Marais that previously occupied the famous Huguette Bouché house.

Handbags are sold separately. You can mix and match the bags and accessories.

MARTINE SITBON

BORN IN OSARUNGA, TO NINEED FRENCH and Italian parents, designer Martine Sitbon grew up in an artistic environment.

A graduate of the Institut Français de la Mode, she designed her first collection in 1996. It was a collection of a 34-year-old woman and her mother. Her first collection was made of leather and crocodile. It was a collection of a 34-year-old woman and her mother.

Three years later, she began designing for Celine. After that time, she went back to designing her own collection, which continues to inspire her collection today.

RISING A CHALLENGE: THE edge of a building 438 feet off the ground may seem scary to a hardcore thrill-seeker, but how you and it face down with the safety nets supporting just the same body? Maybe not, unless you're here in Cebu City recently.

The Crown Regency Hotel and Resort is the heart of Cebu City, and what could become the city's entertainment focus—the Sky Experience Adventure (SEA).

Along the edge of the city, the SEA is a place where you can see the city from a different perspective. It's a place where you can see the city from a different perspective. It's a place where you can see the city from a different perspective.

Gabbi Floirendo basks on her special day

By Carmela Francisco

GABRIELLE "GABBI" MICHELE Floirendo, youngest daughter of Imelda and Marjorie Floirendo, had a simple wish when she celebrated her 18th birthday: "I want to have a day party with my friends like Alice in Wonderland," she said last year.

Lifestyle friends group, "Gabbi's Circle," and top designer Eric Anderson set things in motion.

On Dec. 22, close friends and relatives walked into Gabbi's wonderland. A huge tent was erected with a stage and a big pool. The tent was decorated with white and gold. The tent was decorated with white and gold. The tent was decorated with white and gold.

Iloilo mall celebrates Dinagyang

THE CITY'S BIGGEST CELEBRATION THE Dinagyang Festival this month with a touch of history, lots of fun, colorful costumes, and dancing.

The Dinagyang is a religious and cultural festival in Iloilo City held on the fourth Sunday of January in honor of the Sto. Niño and to celebrate the arrival of the Holy Child in Iloilo.

The festival began after the Sto. Niño's arrival in Iloilo in 1565. In 1906, P. Joaquin Guevara brought a statue of the Holy Child to Iloilo. The statue was placed in the Sto. Niño's shrine in Iloilo.
